

JEFFRIS OUT; AND NOLAN IS IN THE FIGHT

Important Changes Announced In The First Congressional District Contest.

IS BIG SURPRISE TO MANY PEOPLE

Jeffris Withdrew Yesterday, And Nolan Announced His Candidacy This Morning.

Important changes have been made in the political situation of the first congressional district congressional fight within the past twenty-four hours. Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Jeffris gave his formal announcement of withdrawal from the race for the congressional nomination of the first district and this morning Thos. S. Nolan, yielding to the importunities of his many friends in Rock, Green, Walworth, Lafayette, Racine and Kenosha counties makes the formal announcement of his candidacy for the republican nomination at the September primaries, to succeed Henry A. Cooper of Racine, the present incumbent.

Mr. Jeffris' decision to withdraw from the race comes as a surprise to his friends throughout the entire district. Much pressure was brought to bear upon him to have him continue his campaign, but private business interests compelled him to take the step and ask his friends to release him from the strenuous campaign that is about to begin. In his formal withdrawal announcement Mr. Jeffris says:

The Announcement.
To the Editor of the Gazette:—
Having announced myself as a candidate for congress through the Gazette and having determined to withdraw, I ask you to announce that fact.

Before making the announcement that I would be a candidate, I was urged to do so by men from every county in this district, and since that time I have received assurances of support of the most gratifying kind, but as you well know, in order to carry on a successful campaign under a primary election law, it is necessary to organize the entire district; to have a personal machine; to solicit votes; to make arrangements to get voters to the polls; in other words, do all that is necessary to be done in a political campaign and to do it all in one's own personal interest. I thought at first I could do this. I find, however, that it is going to be absolutely impossible for me to carry on this work. Since making my announcement, business matters have arisen which require my closest personal attention, and I cannot devote the time which my friends have a right to expect of me in a campaign. I do not mean by this that I have lost any interest in politics, as I expect in the future to continue to have the same interest as I have in the past, but I prefer that such interest be impersonal.

I am duly grateful to the many people who have offered me support and have said kind things to and about me, and to them I give my sincere thanks.

Very truly yours,
M. G. JEFFRIS.

Nolan's Announcement.
In making his announcement of his candidacy and stating the platform upon which he asks for the nomination Mr. Nolan says:

To the Voters of the First Congressional District of Wisconsin:
I am a candidate for the nomination as a member of the House of Representatives.

NO RAISE IN LOCAL INSURANCE RATES

Agents Unanimously Deny Published Report Of An Impending Boost.

Anent a published statement to the effect that fire insurance rates had been "considerably boosted" in Janesville during the past few days, or were going to be, Orville Morse made a positive statement this morning that no local agent in this city had received by word or pen or type writer any intimation whatever of the advance in local rates by any company and that no such movement was considered, contemplated, or dreamed of in any quarter by anyone familiar to the slightest degree with the present insurance situation. His statement was borne out by that of Philip Cheek of Baraboo, former state insurance commissioner and at present state agent for the Hartford, who happened to be in the Bower City this morning. "There is absolutely nothing to it," was his terse comment when attention was called to the report. In the congested districts of Milwaukee and there alone, so far as the state of Wisconsin is concerned, will the rates be raised. At least that is the solemn assurance given by the insurance men.

sentatives, on the Republican ticket. So that there may be no misunderstanding between us, I feel that I should inform you concerning my views on some of the questions that are pressing, and others that begin to loom.

I hope you will not consider it out of place for me to state that I am in favor of all the legislation of a reform nature that has recently been made the law of this state. I cordially believe that wise and able men should be chosen to enforce these laws.

I am in favor of such legislation, and in case I should be nominated and elected, would do all in my power to aid in securing it, that will attain the following:

The curtailment of the hours of labor on all public work, both state and national to eight hours each day, and on all private work when practicable.

Due notice of every application for an injunction or restraining order in any court, whether in a dispute between labor and capital, or otherwise.

A sane and proper regulation of railroad and other corporations, and the prevention of detrimental combinations thereof.

A judicious revision of the tariff laws, lessening or abolishing the tax on the necessities of life.

Old age pensions, and a system of workmen's insurance.

I will strenuously oppose any and all legislation that would tend to make unprofitable the cultivation of sugar beets and tobacco, even though it may seem necessary to theorists that we should suffer in order to favor the people of our insular possessions.

These are principles that I would contend for in case I were elected. I do not think it necessary to elaborate any further at this time.

After reading this, if you can conscientiously support me, I will be pleased to have you do so.

Trusting that you will, I remain, Respectfully,

THOS. S. NOLAN.

MANY FEATURES OF NEW BATTLESHIPS

Navy Department Makes Public Chief Characteristics Of Michigan And South Carolina.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., June 23.—The navy department has made public the chief characteristics of the battleships Michigan and South Carolina, bids for the construction of which were opened today. The new battleships, which must displace on their trial trips not more than 16,000 tons, will be 450 feet long, with an extreme breadth at the water-line of 80 feet and two and one-half inches in thickness. The armament plans call for a main battery of eight 12-inch breech-loading rifles, and two submerged torpedo tubes, while the secondary battery is to consist of twenty-two 6-inch rapid fire guns, eight 3-pounder semi-automatic guns, two 1-pounder semi-automatic guns, two 3-inch field pieces, and four machine guns of 30 calibre. The 12-inch guns, of which the new ships will carry twice as many as are on board any American vessel now in commission or building, are to be mounted in pairs, in four electrically controlled elliptical turrets, each with an arc of fire of 270 degrees, two turrets being forward and two aft. The guns of the secondary battery will be placed in large unobstructed arcs of fire. The torpedo tubes will be installed forward.

The bulks of the South Carolina and Michigan will be protected by a water-line belt of armor that will vary in thickness from twelve to eight inches in some sections, from twelve to ten inches in other sections. The ammunition will be carried in magazines and shell-rooms so placed that the bulk of the total supply will be carried forward and the other half aft. The handling rooms will be isolated from the turrets, the twelve and three-inch armaments and the torpedoes and torpedoes will be transported on trolleys and tracks fitted in the handling rooms, passages and shell-rooms.

The engines of the new battleships are to have a combined indicated horsepower of 16,500, each engine to be in a separate water-tight compartment. The twelve water-tube boilers, which are to be fitted with superheaters, will be in three water-tight compartments, and the coal bunkers are to have a maximum capacity of about 2,200 tons. All the main compartments below the gun deck will be provided with forced ventilation, the combined capacity of the seven-teen blowers being not less than 100,000 cubic feet per minute. The accommodations are to be sufficient to accommodate fifty-one officers and 378 men.

TAKING CENSUS OF WESTERN PROVINCES

Statistics Relating To Population And Agriculture In Manitoba, Alberta And Saskatchewan.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Winnipeg, Man., June 23.—During the week beginning tomorrow a complete census will be taken of Manitoba and the new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The statistics to be gathered by the enumerators will relate particularly to the population and agriculture. In consequence of the great influx of population into the Canadian west the Dominion parliament has provided that every five years a census be taken in this section. The completion of this census will show, among other things, the true extent of the much talked of American invasion of the west. There are supposed to be at present fully a quarter of a million Americans already settled in this portion of the Dominion, and it is estimated that between 75,000 and 100,000 more people from the United States will move to Canada before the close of the present summer. These figures are all the more surprising when it is stated that ten years ago only fifty homesteads were allotted to Americans in the whole of Canada.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Tromsø, Norway, June 23.—For the second time within a dozen years Walter Wellman, the American explorer, is here completing preparations for a dash into the polar region, which lies at the very gates of this far northern town. If all goes well another week or so will see the little party of intrepid Americans ready for their airship flight over the Arctic seas with the north pole as their goal.

The Norwegians are taking the keenest interest in the Wellman expedition. Aerial navigation is new to them, but Arctic exploration is not. They view the American venture kindly enough, but at the same time the Norwegians are true to their idol, and their idol in Arctic work, natural ly enough, is the gallant Dr. Nansen. The popularity of Dr. Nansen is very great among his countrymen, and they look upon Mr. Wellman as a dangerous competitor of their favorite in the race for the pole. The vast majority, however, unite in the sentiment that if a Norwegian cannot have the honor of winning the pole then may it be an American.

Mr. Wellman is putting the finishing touches to his preparations with the same feeling that he began the work. He has the same faith in the feasibility of his plans, while at the same time he appreciates all the difficulties and dangers of the project.

Two problems are uppermost in his project. First, the vertical stability of his airship, as affected by heat, cold and precipitation, and controlled by guide-rope and ballast; second, the possibility of a successful anchorage during high winds, a puff of cold or warm wind, a touch of damp mist, causes the balloon to rise or fall. It is most essential in a projected voyage to keep the balloon at an even height. This the heavy guide-rope does. Trailing along the ground or in the sea, it keeps the balloon down, since, when the airship has a tendency to rise, it has to lift more and more of the weight of the rope. On the other hand, as the balloon ascends it is relieved of the weight. The guide-rope is also of some service in steering the unstable craft, and for this purpose Andree used several ropes.

According to Mr. Wellman's plans his airship is at no time to be out of touch with the surface of the earth. A smooth, tapering line of steel is to drag its lower end over the ice, keep the ship at a fairly stable height (150 to 250 feet), and maintain under ordinary conditions, the vertical stability of the craft. Then there are other factors involved. In the problem of vertical stability. There may be an accumulation of frost, snow, sleet or moisture upon the airship amounting to several hundreds of pounds in an hour or so. In operation the motor is consuming fuel at the rate, perhaps, of 800 to 1000 pounds in twenty-four hours. The airship may lose a considerable part of its ascensional force through cold and loss of gas at the very time when, instead of dropping weight to correspond through consumption of gasoline, it is actually gaining weight through accumulation of frost and snow. Again the reverse may be true—a considerable gain of volume and lift force at the very time the motors are rapidly reducing the weight of the cargo.

The possibility of a successful anchorage is another serious problem. In case the ship at anchor were attacked by a wind exceeding the tremendous velocity of fifty miles an hour, the envelope, probably, would be ruptured and the whole thing collapse in ruin. In such an event the aerial part of the voyage would come to an end, because the gas would escape, and the huge envelope would soon come tumbling down upon the ice. There would then be nothing to do but to continue the journey by means of sledging over the ice with ice motors, the fuel unconsumed by the engines of the airship being available for this purpose.

The jury took six ballots and after three as to her guilt were cast, agreed. They followed the instructions of the court in regard to the insane phase of the case. Mrs. McKinney is out on fifteen hundred dollars bonds. She will probably be sentenced Monday. She never moved when the finding of the jury was read.

Mr. Yamamoto, who is a graduate of the Kyoto Imperial University, was recommended by the faculty of that institution as a government student last year, and after visiting a number of the important American universities, selected the University of Wisconsin as the institution at which to enjoy the privilege of his government scholarship.

Yrdahl, a graduate of the university who received the degree of doctor of philosophy from Wisconsin, has just been promoted to the position of head professor of economic and history in Colorado College. Enter Consular Service.
Three graduates of the University of Wisconsin who have been pursuing graduate work in political science have received appointments in the consular service. The University of Wisconsin was one of the first institutions to offer special training in political science, political economy, commerce, and other branches in preparation for consular and diplomatic service, and the three graduates just appointed are among the first to enter this field. Ernest Bradford Smith, who was graduated from the university in 1897, and has since pursued graduate studies, during the past year having been research scholar in political science, has just received notification of his appointment as vice-consul general at Yokohama, Japan. Henry L. Janes, a graduate of the university in the class of '02, and afterwards a graduate student in political science and history, becomes secretary of the American Legation in Valparaiso. Horatio B. Watkins, scholar in political science, enters the university this year, enters the Imperial Chinese Customs service at Shanghai under Sir Robert Hart.

Legislative Libraries.
Another important profession for which students are being trained by the departments of political science, political economy, and history of the university, is that of legislative librarian. The success of the Wisconsin legislative library under the direction of Dr. Charles McCarthy, who was a graduate student of the university and received his doctor's degree from Wisconsin, has resulted in a number of other states adopting a similar system. Two students of the University of Wisconsin have just been appointed to the position of legislative librarian. Charles Brown Lester, fellow in political science, becomes head of the legislative library of Indiana, and he leaves for Indianapolis shortly to take up the duties of his new position. J. Earle Baker, Eagle, who received the degree of bachelor of philosophy at the commencement Wednesday, and has been pursuing graduate work in political science, has received the appointment of legislative librarian for the state of Washington.

HIGHWAYS OF STATE BEING INVESTIGATED

The State Geological Survey Studying the Conditions of the Roads.

The State Geological Survey is systematically studying the condition of the roads of the state, together with the methods used in building them and keeping them in repair. It is taking up this investigation for the purpose of spreading as widely as possible the knowledge of how to build roads properly and how to care for them in the most economical and intelligent manner. Particular attention is being paid to the common dirt roads, as it is evident that most roads must be made of the dirt found along the roadway for many years to come, and therefore information, as to the cheapest and best means of making such roads, will be of greatest value.

Letters enclosing a list of questions concerning the roads in his township will be sent to each town clerk in a few days. It is important that a complete set of data such as these questions ask for should be in the hands of the Geological Survey as soon as possible. Any person interested can then find where the best methods of road work in any county are being used, and any advice the Survey may be asked for will be based on a complete knowledge of conditions which would be difficult to obtain in any other manner.

Such an investigation as the Geological Survey has started must be of the greatest value. It is evident to anyone who considers the question that much of the money spent on country roads is wasted, not wilfully wasted, only ignorantly wasted, but wasted nevertheless. The bad places are "fixed" every spring or fall only to be ready to swallow up more money and labor as soon as the next wet spell is ended. There is over a million dollars spent annually upon the roads of the state by people who know but very little of the fundamental principles of road-building, and as a consequence much of it is wasted. If the people of the state were to spend a million dollars in any other way they would insist on wise, economical management. There is no reason why dirt roads should not be passable at all seasons of the year and afford much more use and pleasure than they do at present to those who drive over them. If the fundamental principles are observed by those who have them in charge, what is first needed is not more money and labor on the roads so much as the proper use of that which is already being expended. It is the purpose of the Geological Survey to put itself in a position to furnish information as to the ways of getting the best results out of the money the people are already putting into their roads, and in this way enable them to secure better roads without adding greatly to their present expenditures.

The Survey will be glad to hear from anyone interested in this work concerning local conditions.

A person who has recently visited the Shenandoah Valley says it is wonderful to see the profusion of cattle and poultry in this "denuded" valley. After the devastation it was said to have suffered. Except the absence of fences, in some places, now and then a fortification or a burnt barn, no one would suppose an army had been in the valley. One or two years' crops will replace all the destruction that has been made except the loss of life.

JEFFRIS' WITHDRAWAL.

In another column of the paper will be found the formal announcement of the withdrawal of the name of Malcolm C. Jeffris from the race for the republican congressional nomination. Mr. Jeffris finds justification for this action in the fact that the pressure of private business interests have made it compulsory. The Gazette regrets that he has found it necessary to withdraw. Mr. Jeffris would have made an excellent congressman and would have represented the first district. His decision to withdraw from the race for the nomination is deplored by all his friends.

NOLAN'S CANDIDACY.

Thos. S. Nolan, one of the leading attorneys, prominent business man and most popular residents of Janesville, makes his formal announcement of his candidacy for the nomination for congress on the republican ticket at the September primaries to succeed Henry A. Cooper of Racine, the present incumbent, in this issue of the Gazette. Mr. Nolan is a gentleman who needs no introduction to the residents of Rock county. The announcement of his candidacy is brought about by pressure from his many friends in this and other counties who recently learned of Mr. Jeffris' intended withdrawal from the race. In bespeaking the hearty support of every republican for Mr. Nolan, the Gazette takes a step which it knows will meet with the approval of republicans all over the first congressional district.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The following sketch, found by a Chicago publisher in an old encyclopedia, was written by John Selden who lived from 1584 to 1654.

"A person of quality came to my chamber in the temple, and told me he had two devils in his head (I wondered what he meant), and just at that time one of them bid him kill me (with that I began to be afraid, and thought he was mad); he said he knew I could cure him, and therefore entreated me to give him something, for he was resolved to go to nobody else. I, perceiving what an opinion he had of me, and that it was only melancholy that troubled him, took him in hand, warranted him if he would follow my directions to cure him in a short time. I desired him to let me be alone about an hour, and then to come again, which he was very willing to do. In the meantime I got a card, and laid it up handsomely in a piece of taffata, and put strings to the taffata, and when he came, gave it to him to hang about his neck; withal charged him that he should not disorder himself, neither with eating or drinking, but eat very little of supper, and say his prayers duly when he went to bed, and I made no question but he would be well in three or four days. Within that time I went to dinner to his house and asked him how he did. He said he was much better, but not perfectly well; for in truth he had not dealt clearly with me: he had four devils in his head, and he perceived two of them were gone with that which I had given him, but the other two troubled him still. Well, said I, I am glad two of them are gone: I make no doubt but to get away the other two likewise. So I gave him another thing to hang about his neck; three days after, he came to me to my chamber and protested he was now as well as ever he was in his life, and did extremely thank me for the great care I had taken of him. I, fearing lest he might relapse into the like distemper, told him that there was none but himself and one physician more in the whole town that could cure the devils in his head; and that was Dr. Harvey (whom I had prepared), and wished him if ever he found himself ill in my absence to go to him, for he could cure his disease, as well as myself. The gentleman lived many years, and was never troubled thereafter."

cured by faith; not in any supernatural power, but simple faith in Dr. Selden.

The remedy applied was as harmless and as weak as water, but it was a tangible remedy; something that the eye could see and the hand could grasp and it met the demands of a diseased mind.

If the doctor had said to his patient, "There's nothing the matter with you, brace up and be a man and the troublesome devils will leave you," he would have turned away disgusted, but the old doctor possessed both wisdom and discernment and he was not long in discovering two things. First, that the patient had a good opinion of him, or faith in him, and second, that he was suffering from chronic melancholia.

He was wise enough to know that it was not a case for argument, and with the simple remedy and a warrant of cure in a few days, the man went out to find permanent relief and health.

The science of mental healing is as old as the race, and is practiced today by all schools of physicians more generally than ever before. Christian Science takes advanced ground in attempting to cure all classes of diseases by directing faith to a supernatural power and the only criticism to be offered along this line, is the indiscriminate handling of patients without an intelligent diagnosis of disease.

The fact is generally recognized that many bodily ailments are due to a diseased mind, and that the best and only effective remedy for this class of diseases is not pills and powders, but direct treatment of the mind, the cause of disturbance.

Dr. Selden recognized this principle three hundred years ago, and while he advised his patient to "say his prayers duly when he went to bed," he also regulated his diet, and depended for a cure on the faith the man had in him, rather than a trust in supernatural forces.

And Dr. Selden been a Christian Science healer, he might have accomplished the same results by inspiring faith in the Divine healer, but like many other intelligent physicians, he employed methods which experience had taught him were effective, and the diseased mind was restored to normal conditions.

The science of healing is a wonderful science and the field is so large that there is room for all classes of intelligent and well equipped practitioners. The Christian Science school is accomplishing much in the realm of diseased minds, but outside of this realm there is a long list of diseases which tax the skill of the best talent that the world produces.

The human body is so intricate in mechanism and so delicate in construction, that no single mind today attempts to solve all the mysteries. In all the large centers of population there are skyscrapers occupied from basement to roof by specialists. Many of them are men of great skill, who have gained a wide reputation by mastering one organ of the human body.

Their waiting rooms are thronged with people waiting for examination and treatment.

One of these men in Chicago is a blind man who has devoted his life to diseases of the lungs. With delicate touch he examines the chest, dictating to an assistant who prepares on paper a chart laid out in one-inch squares. When the diagnosis is completed the chart shows the condition of the lungs, and the parts affected.

Medicines are seldom prescribed, but the doctor is thoroughly familiar with altitudes and climates. In all parts of the country and the patient is sent to the place best adapted to his condition, and advised to live in the open air.

An old gentleman from California was sent to Chicago six weeks ago to consult a noted oculist. He was seventy-six years old and for twenty-three years had been totally blind from "cataracts." The doctor gave him a careful examination and inspired him with hope by telling him that sight could be restored.

He went into a hospital and submitted to an operation. The case was stubborn, but gradually yielded. One day last week he called at the doctor's office with eyes still bandaged, accompanied by his daughter, a lady of fifty.

The bandages were removed, glasses adjusted, and turning the old man around the doctor said, "Mr. McClellan, permit me to introduce your daughter." The old man looked with glad surprise, and then said, "Well, Mary is a better looking woman than I ever thought she'd be." Then they embraced each other while tears of joy were on their cheeks because of the great blessing of restored vision.

In speaking of the pathetic incident, the oculist said: "The operation which gave the old man sight was not known to science five years ago," and then he added, "there are a lot of things about the eye that we don't understand yet."

This was an honest confession from a man who devotes all of his time and talent to a single organ of the body. He would not attempt any other class of surgery nor the treatment of any disease.

These men represent a large class of specialists, who by persistent work and well directed energy have mastered, in a measure, the diseases which attack some particular organ. They don't claim to know it all, but what they know, they know, and ability is freely recognized.

In talking with one of these great specialists the other day, the science of osteopathy was mentioned. He said: "I don't know much about the new science, but we hail any science that can throw any light on disease and prescribe a helpful treatment."

There are thousands of people who enjoy poor health and they never weary of reminding you how much they enjoy it. To this class of invalids, christian science comes as a great boon. The diseased mind responds to the touch of human sympathy and endorses the remedy prescribed.

The time has passed when intelligent people ridicule a belief which satisfies so many people. The Philadelphia for July contains an article entitled, "A Little Journey to the Home of Mary Baker Eddy," which will be read with interest by scientists. Mr. Hubbard always handles things without gloves and while he is erratic and sometimes sacrilegious, yet he says a great many true things. In speaking of christian science he says:

"Christian science has made great headway in the thirty years of its existence than christianity made in its first thousand years. The statement of Heine, that christianity is a religion of sorrow was a point well made. But christian science is a religion of joy. Christian scientists are not preparing to die. Christian science does not shout, rant, defy or preach. It is poised, silent, sure, and the flagellants, like the dervishes, are noticeable by their absence. The Rev. Billy Sunday is not a christian scientist. The christian scientist does not cut into the grape; specialize on the elevated spheroid; devote his energies to bridge whist; cultivate the scandal microbe; join the anvil chorus or shake the red rag of wordy warfare. He is diligent in business, fervent in spirit, accepts what comes without protest. He not only banishes pain, but also poverty, for poverty is a disease."

Thousands of barrels of flour were sold by the San Francisco relief committee because there was too much there already and they needed the money for something else. Now Minneapolis, which sent the flour, wants to know why it was done.

Veterans of the Spanish-American war have organized into a camp in Janesville. Forty years from now they will be telling how they did it just as some of the old "vets" of today are doing.

State politics will soon be humming. That is, the wires will be kept hot with messages of condolence for the candidates who are bound to suffer defeat.

San Francisco is now fully awake to the situation of rebuilding and from the amount of talk the work of reconstruction is progressing rapidly.

All men are not constituted alike, but some men try to force their opinions down the mouths of all men whether they like it or not.

There is little liability of the people voting for the next president before nineteen eight and much can be done in the meantime.

One by one the old settlers, the pioneers of this country, pass away and their places are taken by the younger generation.

Exchange: The Hon. Ben Tillman has no faith that he can save the country, but he derives some satisfaction from yelling at it as it dashes headlong down to destruction.

There Seems To Be No Solution.
Chicago News: We are to have a course in domestic science for the high school girls, but washing dishes cannot be made attractive even though a Latin name should be discovered for it.

World's WORK?
Rockford Register Gazette: You may think you can do the world's work on a vegetable diet but it is interesting to note in this connection that the Battle Creek baseball team has won only three games out of twenty-one played.

In His Little Memorandum.
Chicago News: La Pollette is putting down the names of a few of his senatorial colleagues in his little book, so that he will be able to remember them when a grateful people shall rise up as one man and elect him president.

Warned Not To Tangle.
Oshkosh Northwestern: The dancing masters declare that hugging must be eliminated from the waltz. But what in the world was the waltz invented for, if it was not to provide a chance for hugging?

Quite A Serious "Difference."
Milwaukee News: The "difference of opinion" between Insurance Commissioner Host and Secretary of State Houser has been emphasized somewhat by the holding of Mr. Houser to trial on the charge of bribery.

Great Future Assured.
Exchange: By consulting the postal guide it will be seen that Oklahoma, the forty-sixth state, has a town of the name of Skedee, which may be considered the slang equivalent of "46" or "double 22." It was named, possibly, by some clairvoyant press agent.

What Is The Inference.
Chicago Record-Herald: Miss Mae Wood is going to try to prove in court that she is the legal wife of United States Senator Thomas C. Platt. The ladies of the land have not as yet begun signing a "monster petition" for Platt's expulsion from the most dignified legislative body on earth.

Missing The Mist.
Evening Wisconsin: Carnegie's $10,000 prize selling reformers want the orthography of "missed" changed to "mist." In that case it will look like the noun which has the same sound. Would it be an improvement to write: "People hoo wer not in Milwaukee yesterda mist the mist that road in from the lake?"

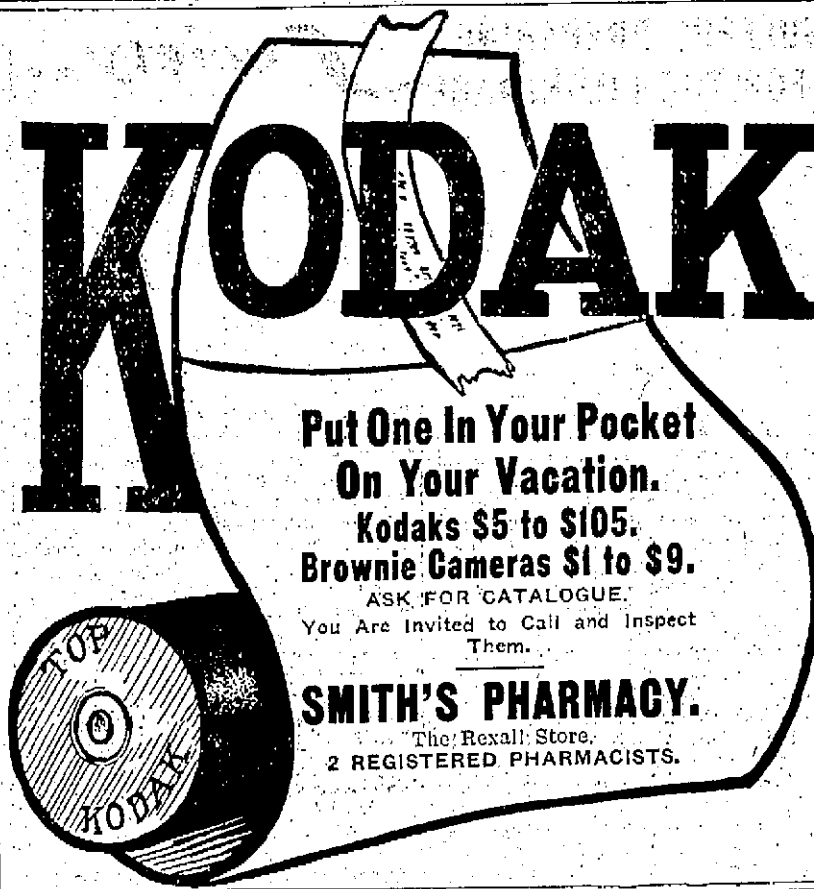

Houser's Dubious Position.
Green Bay Gazette: Does Houser want a vindication or does he simply want to escape through a technicality? If the former he is taking a peculiar method of securing it and if the latter would be as well for him not to attempt to secure a re-nomination from the republican voters of the state.

Too Daring To Entertain.
El Paso Herald: Northern railroads are experimenting on a refrigerated dining car, ventilated with a current of cooled, dried air. Some of these days the march of invention may make Pullman berths habitable in hot weather. Of course this is a daring prophecy, but then so people said when Bell predicted that talking along a wire might be practicable.

Tainted Money Again.
La Crosse Leader-Press: Bishop Samuel Fallows' reference to "the bribery of the minister of God on the altar" in the interests of Mammon should reach the sensibilities of the various holy men who are grasping for trust donations and defending the givers with a great deal more of zeal than they exhibit in any other phase of the work connected with their sacred calling.

Rockford's English Patriots.
Rockford Register-Gazette: Funny, isn't it, that three Englishmen have charge of the Fourth of July celebration in Rockford, S. V. Saxby, E. A. Camlin and Thomas Sherratt. If the ancestors of "Val" and "Cam" and Sherratt hadn't been such deucedly poor scrappers a matter of one hundred and thirty years ago Rockford might be celebrating King Edward's day with a regatta and the bird of freedom would still be in its cage.

Wide Tires For Country Roads.
Evening Wisconsin: Massachusetts and Michigan have a law that agitators for better country roads deem worthy of imitation in Wisconsin. Under this law farmers are encouraged to use wide tires by the incentive of a rebate at tax-paying time calculated with reference to the width of the tires. A wide tire is an effective road roller. A narrow tire, on the contrary, cuts deep ruts into a road, by means of which water gets in and the road is soon impaired and subsequently ruined. Let anyone who doubts the efficacy of wide tires look at a road after wide tires have passed, and notice its of Evansville, and her daughter drove 15 miles to Janesville today to secure the services of Dr. F. T. Richards, who they had heard could extract teeth PAINLESSLY.

Mrs. Murray, in speaking to her son, said, "I've had them all out (nine in number) and they DIDN'T HURT A-BIT."

He could hardly believe it, but she soberly affirmed that Dr. Richards did the best of any dentist she ever had work for her.

The daughter also had him work for her and she also said that he DIDN'T HURT.

GOLFERS PREPARING FOR THE PILGRIMAGE

It is Believed That Entries Will Be Swelled To Near A Hundred By Monday.

Though there have thus far been only forty out-of-town entries in the state golf tournament which opens here Tuesday next, it is expected that the number will be swelled to sixty or a hundred the first of the week. The contest for men over fifty years of age, for which a handsome cup has been hung up, has attracted widespread interest and contestants are coming from several cities who promise to make it interesting for local "silver grays" who have confidently figured on keeping the trophy right in Janesville. Attorney H. O. Fairchild of Green Bay, who is sixty-one years old, is regarded as one of the most dangerous of the prospective contestants. Several of the players have already arrived and are devoting an ideal day to practice at the links. The grounds were never more beautiful, though the greens are said by some not to be in perfect condition. Dr. White of Milwaukee played over the course yesterday. Dr. E. J. Buchanan of Racine, Hamilton Vose of Milwaukee, and F. W. Jacobs of Madison are having a try-out today. H. M. Curtis of Madison is expected here tomorrow.

Eastern golfers triumphed in the western open championship, which was concluded over the links of the Homewood Country club yesterday, the title going to Alexander Smith of the Nassau Country club of Glen Cove, L. I., who returned a score of 306 for the seventy-two holes, and second money to John Holmes of the Englewood, N. J., golf club, who totaled 309. National Open Champion Willie Anderson of Onwentsia, Fred McLeod of Midlothian, formerly of the Rockford club and well remembered in Janesville, and Gilbert Nicholls of Denver were the western contestants who landed in the money, the two first being tied for third prize with totals of 321, and Nicholls taking fifth place with 331. One stroke behind Nicholls came Arthur Smith of Columbus, Ohio, who released the championship to Smith, while Mexican Open Champion Willie Smith finished four positions further down, with a total of 329, being tied with Jack Jolly of Arlington, N. J., for tenth place.

Alex. Smith annexes the western championship for the second time in three years, having been successful in the competition at the Milwaukee Country club in 1903. He has twice been runner-up for the national open championship in recent years in the premier competition. He has been near the winning course in the national championship so many times that he is regarded as the most unlucky professional in the game.

POST OFFICE SCENE OF HANGING TODAY

Little Sparrow Met Sad Fate While Placing Horse Hair In Nest On Pillar Of Capitol.

Twirling and twisting as the wind plays about the irregularities of the building's surface, hangs from the capital of one of the post-office pillars the lifeless body of a sparrow. The positive evidence points to suicide or murder but the circumstantial and hearsay testimony proves that death was accidental. Those who have been watching the busy, little, gray birds building their nests in the corners and under the eaves tell him this morning the unfortunate matron picked up a long horse hair from the road and took it to strengthen the nest's moorings. One end was securely fastened and the sparrow flew. The loose end had become entangled in her wing and flight was short. Unable to fly back, one pinion being disabled, and with no place on the smooth surface of the wall to cling, she struggled bravely until from sheer fatigue death came.

CURRENT NEWS

Two Drunks in Court: Frank Schmidt, nicknamed "the dynamiter" by the police owing to the fact that fifteen dynamite caps were found on his person on the occasion of a recent incarceration, appeared in municipal court this morning to answer to the charge of drunkenness. A fine of $2 and costs with the alternative of 7 days in jail was levied and Mr. Schmidt chose the latter. Robert Welch was sentenced to 3 days in jail and a fine of $1 and costs or two additional days, for the same offense.

Couldn't Locate Holdridge: Sheriff Cochran and a detective made a second fruitless tour of Chicago yesterday in search of Romaine Holdridge, wanted as the star witness in an assault with intent to do great bodily injury action which, owing to conflicting testimony of the complainant, Louis Rock, and the parties whom he has named as co-guilty with what transpired, cannot be safely started without him in the opinion of the district attorney.

Marriage Licenses: Applications for marriage licenses have been filed by Benjamin F. Johanson and Bessie E. Thomas, both of Milton; Lorenzo D. Herdendorf of Milton and Mary E. Lunnah of Janesville; Louis B. Chamberlain of Watertown and Genevieve Boos of Janesville.

Conductor to President: George Plant, a conductor on the Madison division of the Northwestern road twenty years ago, passed through here this noon on a private car being enroute for Baraboo where he will visit old friends. He is now president of the Plant system in the south. He was greeted at the passenger depot by Yardmaster David B. Griffin and Alva Hemmens, cashier at the freight depot. Mr. Hemmens was called when Mr. Plant "ran out" of Janesville. Mr. Plant announced his coming early this morning by a telegraphic request to meet Mr. Griffin, Clark Ranous, and Alva Hemmens' father, now deceased.

Society..

Charles H. Patterson has received a copy of the Bangham Press, published at Banghampton, New York, giving an account of the wedding of Miss Julia Marie Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Robinson, and Clinton Emmons Collier, which occurred in that city on Tuesday evening, June 12. Cleveland Robinson, father of the bride, is a son of the late Major General John C. Robinson who went to the civil war from Janesville and lived for many years on Prospect avenue, this city. A feature of the wedding festivities was the bride's cutting of the wedding cake with her grandfather's sword. Cleveland Robinson has visited at the home of his cousin, Victor P. Richardson, on several occasions of late years.

Last evening a very happy gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Denning on Holmes St. The occasion was that of the fiftieth anniversary of Mrs. Denning's birth. About fifty were in attendance and the evening was very enjoyably spent in playing games and listening to the musical talent rendered by those present. An excellent supper was served and it was not until the "wee small hours of the morning" that the company broke up. Several were in attendance from outside the city, they being Mrs. Dunphy, Mrs. Denning's mother, who recently celebrated her golden wedding in the town of Harmony; Tom and George Dunphy, brothers of Mrs. Denning, and Miss Burns of Chicago.

M. & St. P. and learn the railroad business. He is a son of Attorney H. O. Fairchild of Green Bay and a brother of Attorney Arthur Fairchild of Milwaukee, both of whom are well known here.

STREET CAR CO. IS TAKING ITS TIME

About Paying Some Trifling Bills Aggregating $1,745.69 Presented By the City.

For brick paving between the rails on East and West Milwaukee and South Main streets, the Janesville Street Railway Co. is indebted to the city to the extent of $1,624.68 and for street improvements between the rails on Milwaukee avenue, to the extent of 121.01, making a total of $1,745.69. Bills for the amounts were sent to the company on Sept. 30 and Dec. 14, 1905, but they remained unpaid and to all intents and purposes, unnoticed. Under the last city administration, the city attorney was authorized to start suit but did not do so. The matter will doubtless be taken up by City Attorney Maxfield.

A FOOL FOR LOVE

By FRANCIS LYNDE

AUTHOR OF "THE GRAFTERS," ETC.

(Copyright, 1905, by J. P. Lippincott Co.)

The secretary appeared and disappeared like a marionette when the string has been jerked by a vigorous hand, and Virginia smiled at this without prejudice to a very acute appreciation of the grave possibilities which were preparing themselves. But have ing her share of the militant quality which made her uncle what he is, she stood her ground.

"Aren't you afraid you will take cold, Uncle Somerville?" she asked, archly; and the Rajah came suddenly to a sense of his incompleteness and went in to finish his ablutions against the opening of the battle actual.

At first Virginia thought she would follow him. When Mercury Jastrow should return with the officer of the law there would be trouble of some sort, and the woman in her shrank from the witnessing of it. But at the same instant the blood of the fighting Carters asserted itself and she resolved to stay.

"I wonder what uncle hopes to be able to do?" she mused. "Will a little town constable with a bit of signed paper from some justice of the peace be mighty enough to stop all that furious activity over there? It's more than incredible."

From that she fell to watching the activity and the orderly purpose of it. A length of steel, with men clustering like bees upon it, would slide from its place on the hand-car to fall with a frosty clang on the cross ties. Instantly the hammocks would pounce upon it. One would fall upon hands and knees to "sight" it into place; two others would slide the squeaking truck gauge along its inner edge; a quartette, working like the component parts of a faultless mechanism, would tap the fixing spikes into the wood; and then at a signal a dozen of the heavy polished hammers swung aloft and a rhythmic volley of resounding blows clamped the rail into permanence on its wooden bed.

Ahead of the steel layers were the Italians placing the cross ties in position to receive the track, and here the form's badge of office and scepter was a pick handle. Above all the clamor and the shouting Virginia could hear the bull-bellow of this foreman roaring out his commands in terms happily not understandable to her; and once she drew back with a little cry of womanly shrinking when the pick handle thumped upon the shoulders of one who lagged.

It was this bit of brutality which enabled her to single out Winton in the throng of workers. He heard the blow, and the oath that went with it, and she saw him run forward to wrench the bludgeon from the bully's hands and fling it afar. What words emphasized the act she could not hear, but the little deed of swift justice thrilled her curiously, and her heart warmed to him as it had when he had thrown off his coat to fall to work on the detailed engine of the "Limited."

"That was fine!" she said to herself. "Most men in his place wouldn't care so long as the work was done, and done quickly. I wonder if—oh, you startled me!"

It was Mr. Somerville Darrah again, clothed upon and in his right mind; otherwise the mind of a master of men who will brook neither defeat at the hands of an antagonist nor disobedience on the part of his following. He was scowling fiercely across at the Utah activities when she spoke, but at her exclamation the frown softened into a smile for his favorite niece.

"Started you, eh? Pahdon me, my dear Virginia. But as I am about to startle someone else, perhaps you would better go in to your aunt."

"Please let me stay out here, Uncle Somerville," she said. "I'll be good and not get in the way."

He shook his head, rather in deprecation than refusal.

"An officer will be here right soon now to make an arrest. There may be a fight, or at least trouble of a sort you wouldn't care to see, my dear."

"Is it—Is it Mr. Winton?" she asked. He nodded.

"What has he been doing—besides being 'The Enemy'?"

The Rajah's smile was ferocious.

"Just now he is trespassing, and directing others to trespass, upon private property. Do you see that dump up there on the mountain—the hole that looks like a mouth with a long gray beard hanging below it? That is a mine, and its claim runs down across the track where Miste Winton is just now spiking his rails."

"But the right of way; I don't understand," she began; then she stopped short and clung to the strong arm. "A man in a wide-brimmed hat and cowboy chapparrones, with a revolver on either hip, was crossing the stream on the ice bridge to scramble up the embankment of the new line."

"The officer?" she asked, in an awed whisper.

The Rajah made a sign of assent. Then, identifying Winton in the throng of workers, he forgot Virginia's presence. "Confound him!" he fumed. "I'd give a thousand dollars if he'd fawn me by showing fight, so we could lock him up on a criminal count!"

"Why, Uncle Somerville!" she cried. But there was no time for reproaches. The leather-breathed person masquerading as the Argentine town marshal had climbed the embankment, and singling out his man was reading his warrant.

Contrary to Mr. Darrah's expressed hope, Winton submitted quietly. With a word to his men—a word that stopped the strenuous labor-battle as suddenly as it had begun—he turned to pick his way down the rough hillside at the heels of the marshal.

For some reason that she could never have set out in words Virginia was distinctly disappointed. It was no part of her desire to see the conflict blaze up in violence, but it nettled her to see Winton give up so easily. Some such thought as this had possession of her while the marshal and his prisoner were picking their way across the ice, and she was hoping that Winton would give her a chance to requite him, if only with a look.

But it was Town Marshal Peter Biggin, affectionately known to his constituents as "Biggin Pete," who gave her the coveted opportunity. Instead of disappearing decently with his captive, the marshal made the mistake of his life by marching Winton up the track to the private car, thrusting him forward and saying: "Here's yer meat, Gov'nor. What-all 'ud ye like for me to do with him?"

Now it is safe to assume that the Rajah had no intention of appearing thus openly as the instigator of Winton's arrest. Hence, if a feroce scowl and a wordless oath could maim, it is to be feared that the overzealous Mr. Biggin would have been physically disqualified on the spot. As it was, Mr. Darrah's ebullient wrath could find no adequate speech forms, and in the eloquent little pause Winton had time to smile up at Miss Cartaret and to wish her the pleasantest of good mornings.

But the Rajah's handicap was not permanent.

"Confound you, seh!" he exploded. "I'm not a justice of the peace. If you've made an arrest, you must have had a warrant for it, and you ought to know what to do with your prisoner."

"I'm dashed if I do," objected the simple-hearted Mr. Biggin. "I allowed you wanted him."

Winton laughed openly. "Simplify it for him, Mr. Darrah. We all know that it was your move to stop the work, and you have stopped it for the moment. What is the charge and where is it answerable?"

The Rajah dropped the mask and spoke to the point.

"The charge, seh, is trespass, and it is answerable in Judge Whitcomb's court in Carbonate. The plaintiff in this particular case is John Doe, the supposed owner of that mining claim up yonder. In the next it will probably be Richard Roe. You are fighting a losing battle, seh."

Winton's smile showed his teeth.

"That remains to be seen," he countered coolly.

The Rajah waved a shapely hand towards the opposite embankment, where the track layers were idling in silent groups waiting for some one in authority to tell them what to do.

"We can do that every day, Miste Winton. And each separate individual arrest will cost your company 12 hours, or such a matter—the time required for you to go to Carbonate to give bond for your appearance."

During this colloquy Virginia had held her ground stubbornly, though she felt intuitively that it would be the greatest possible relief to the three men if she would go away.

But now a curious struggle as of a divided allegiance was holding her. Of course, she wanted Mr. Somerville Darrah to win. Since he was its advocate, his cause must be righteous and just. But as against this dutiful conviction there was a rebellious hope that Winton would not allow himself to be beaten, or rather it was a feeling that she would never forgive him if she should.

So it was that she stood with face averted lest he should see her eyes and read the rebellious hope in them. And notwithstanding the precaution he both saw and read, and made answer to the Rajah's ultimatum accordingly.

"Do you want, Mr. Darrah. We have some 20 miles of steel to lay to take us into the Carbonate yards. That steel shall go down in spite of anything you can do to prevent it."

Virginia waited breathless for her uncle's reply to this cool defiance. Contrary to all precedent, it was mildly expostulatory.

"It grieves me, seh, to find you so determined to count failure," he began, and when the wile of the upcoming Carbonate train gave him leave to go on: "Constable, you will find transportation for yourself and one in the hands of the station agent, Miste Winton, that is your train. I wish you good morning and a pleasant journey. Come, Virginia, we shall be late to our breakfast."

Winton walked back to the station at the heels of his captor, edging his brain to devise some means of getting word to Adams. Happily the technician, who had been unloading steel at the construction camp, had been told of the arrest, and when Winton reached the station he found his assistant waiting for him.

But now the train was at hand and had grown suddenly precious. Winton turned short upon the marshal. "This is not a criminal matter, Mr. Biggin; will you give me a moment with my friend?"

The ex-cowboy grinned. "Bet your life I will. I ain't lovin' that old blither-buster in the private car none too hard." And he went in to get the passes.

"What's up?" queried Adams, forgetting his drawl for once in a way.

"An arrest—trumped-up charge of trespass on that mining claim up yonder. But I've got to go to Carbonate to answer, the charge and give bonds, just the same."

"Any instructions?"

"Yes. When the trains out of sight and hearing, you get back over there and drive that track laying for every foot there is in it."

Adams nodded. "I'll do it, and get myself locked up, I suppose."

"No, you won't; that's the beauty of it. The majesty of the law—all there is of it in Argentine—goes with me to Carbonate in the person of the town marshal."

"Oh, good—succinctly good! Well, so long. I'll look for you back on the evening train!"

"Sure!" If the Rajah doesn't order it to be abandoned on my poor account."

Ten minutes later, when the train had gone storming on its way to Carbonate and the Rosemary party was at breakfast, the clank of steel and the chatters of the hammermen on the other side of the canyon began again with renewed vigor. The Rajah threw up his head like a war horse scenting the battle from afar and laid his commands upon the long-suffering secretary.

"Favoh me, Jastrow. Get out there and see what they are doing, seh."

The secretary was back in the shortest possible interval, and his report was concise and business-like.

"Work under full headway again, in charge of a fellow who wears a billy-cock hat and smokes cigarettes."

"Mr. Mort P. Adams," said Virginia, recognizing the description.

"Will you have him arrested too, Uncle Somerville?"

But the Rajah rose hastily without replying and went to his office stateroom, followed, shadow-like, by the obsequious Jastrow.

It was some little time after breakfast, and Virginia and the Reverend Billy were doing a constitutional on the plank platform at the station, when the secretary came down from the car on his way to the telegraph office.

It was Virginia who stopped him. "What do we do next, Mr. Jastrow?" she said—"call in the United States army?"

For reply he handed her a telegram, damp from the copying press. It was addressed to the superintendent of the C. & G. R. at Carbonate, and she read it without scruple.

"Have the sheriff of this county swear in a dozen deputies and come with them by special train to Argentine. Revive all possible titles to abandoned mining claims on line of the Utah Extension, and have Sheriff Decker bring blank warrants to cover any emergency."

"DARRAH, V. P."

"That's one of them," said the secretary. "I dare not show you the other."

"Oh, please!" she said, holding out her hand, while the Reverend Billy considerably turned his back.

Jastrow weighed the chances of detection. It was little enough he could do to lay her under obligations to him, and he was willing to do that little as he could. "I guess I can trust you," he said, and gave her the second square of press-damp paper.

Like the first, it was addressed to the superintendent at Carbonate. But this time the brown eyes flashed and her breath came quickly as she read the vice president's cold-blooded afterthought:

"Town Marshal Biggin will arrive in Carbonate on No. 1 at 10 a. m. with a prisoner. Have our attorneys see to it that the man is promptly jailed in default of bond. If he is set at liberty, as he is likely to be, I shall trust you to arrange for his rearrest and detention at all hazards."

Southerners Excited Over Cooper's Cures

There seems to be no let-up in the excitement over the remarkable cures of stomach trouble and rheumatism that L. T. Cooper, the young philanthropist is effecting with his medicines.

His work in New Orleans for the past few weeks has been creating wide attention in that section of the country. On the streets, in hotels and other public places Cooper's cures are the sole topic of conversation. He is discussed everywhere, and the newspapers contain daily reports of his cures. A number of startling cases have been cited and the names of the most prominent citizens have appeared in connection, which fact seems to verify the truth of the reports.

In an interview with Mr. J. T. Russell, a well-known business man of New Orleans, living at 2538 Delachaise St., who is reported as having been cured of rheumatism with the new medicines, he said: "It is true that I have been wonderfully benefited by Cooper's New Discovery medicine in a very severe case of sciatic rheumatism, from which I suffered for some time. I have used Cooper's medicines one week and the results have been truly marvelous. Before that time I was almost helpless, and now I can use the afflicted parts freely without the least pain. The swelling and soreness disappeared soon after I began using the treatment and now I am improving every day."

Mr. A. J. Briskin, another prominent and influential man of New Orleans, living at 1005 Annunciation St., whose name was among those printed in a recent issue of the Picayune, was seen and talked freely of his experience. He was enthusiastic in his praise of Cooper and said: "I am surprised myself at the wonderful results I have obtained from the use of those preparations. For my case was a most obstinate one and has had medical skill for the past three years. I have been suffering from inflammatory rheumatism and sometime ago I went to a hospital, where I received the best of care and was treated by several physicians, but without relief. One of my knees was greatly swollen, and so sore that I could not bear to touch it. I had tried everything I ever heard of, and had about given up hope of ever getting better when I began to read the stories of Cooper's marvelous cures. I determined to see what his remedies would do for me, however, and began using them. At the end of the first week the swelling had been reduced and I could use my limb freely without the least pain. I have been improving right along and now I feel better than I have for some time."

Cooper's preparations are well known in this city, and have effected some remarkable cures here. At E. B. Holmstrom's drug store, the local sales agency for the medicines, it is said that the demand has been enormous, and that the sales are still on the increase, which fact amply proves their efficiency.

CHANCE FOR A DULL PUPIL

Educational Experiment Which Has Solved Most Vexing Modern Problem.

The superintendent of the schools of Batavia, N. Y., has apparently solved one of the most vexing questions which have to do with modern education. It is a realization of the fact that a child who is not a pupil has a right to be educated personally for what he can best achieve. For many years it has been charged against the public school system that the standards were set for the clever pupils to the detriment of the backward and dull ones. If the "Batavia experiment," as it is called, proves after long trial to do what it is hoped it will, then primary education will be infinitely bettered.

Mr. Kennedy, the originator of the scheme, proposed to the governing board of Batavia to procure the services of an extra teacher for each room whose duty it should be not to listen to recitations, but to help and encourage any pupils who were falling behind the class. It was to be entirely a work of sympathy and demanded great tact and discernment. The plan was tried in a single room and the result was so marked in both pupils and teachers that the experiment has spread rapidly and is being introduced in all the better schools in the United States.

Its value can not be overestimated. The teachers are stimulated to do less nagging, while the pupils themselves are relieved from going beyond their ability and strength. And the effect on health of the children was also marked. No books were taken home for night study and six times the number of pupils remained to graduate from the high school.
